END FOSSIL FUELS NOW: Extinction Rebellion and Just Stop Oil block oil facilities across the UK

BREAKING: In the early hours of the morning, Extinction Rebellion UK and groups in the Just Stop Oil Coalition have blocked 10 major oil facilities across the UK. We will continue to block the sites until the UK Government agrees to end all new fossil fuel investments immediately.[1]

Extinction Rebellion is blocking the Esso West Terminal near Heathrow Airport, and the Hamble and Hythe Terminals in Southampton. People are locked on at the entrances using large pink oil barrels filled with concrete, with the words 'END FOSSIL FUELS NOW' on them. Two people are up bamboo structures at the Esso Terminal and the Southampton locations each have one of the iconic Extinction Rebellion boats blocking the entrances with people locked to them. At the Esso terminal in London, 4 people have climbed on top of an oil silo and have hung large banners that say 'JOIN US – LONDON APRIL 9' and 'END FOSSIL FUELS'.

Scores of people sat in the road to block oil tankers from leaving each site, while others climbed on top of oil tankers.

The action is taking place at a crucial time: The UK public is waking up this morning to a 54% rise in the energy price cap, which the Citizens' Advice charity say will leave millions of people unable to pay their bills.[2] As war wages in Ukraine – a war that Christiana Figueres describes as being “financed by those in the West who import Russian oil and gas” – governments around the world are making plans to get off Russian oil and gas at speed.[3] However, instead of doing what's necessary to move away from fossil fuels to align with Paris Climate pledges, World leaders are choosing to appease oil companies and pursue extraction elsewhere. This is despite the recent IPCC report stating that staying on fossil fuels means that half the population of the continent of Africa could be displaced within the next eight years. These are the people and nations who have done the absolute least to cause the crisis.[4]

Extinction Rebellion is here to say: Not in our name.

Clare Farrell, co-founder of Extinction Rebellion, said: “Today the climate movement is asking you to pay attention, to join the dots on environmental destruction, the peril faced by our world family and the gross profiteering that is trying to cancel the future of humanity.

“The dots are being joined for us all in the current context, from the wars fuelled by fossil fuel money, the blatant global racism on show in the response to the refugee crises, the exacerbating inequalities in the cost of living crisis, and energy companies shamelessly making record profits from the plight of the ordinary person. It's predicted that in just a matter of months 1 in 4 people in the UK will be unable to pay their energy bills. The Gillet Jaune had a catchphrase – end of the month, end of the world, same struggle.

“It is now clear in the UK too, we're being ripped off, our future is being burned, sold, decimated and all the while our government sits back doing nothing to help ordinary people. Enough of the lies, deceit and deadly political failure. Only a few months ago our leaders were crying in Glasgow because they had failed the world, now they are seeking to bend the rules of physics to meet their political project and give oil and gas companies a pass. We know it won't work, and it's too late for denial and delay."

The blockades come just over a week before the Rebellion begins in London on April 9th.[5] For anyone watching the blockades over the coming days, we call on everyone who wants to bring an end to the fossil fuel economy to go to Hyde Park at 10am on April 9th and join us in civil resistance until fossil fuel investments come to an end. We will be big and loud and impossible to ignore and we will return day after day until our immediate demand is met: No new fossil fuel investments, no new fossil fuel licences, end fossil fuel subsidies now.

The government is making a choice to continue its addiction to fossil fuels as war wages in Ukraine, instead of accelerating the transition to a renewable led future. They could choose not to. Just a few months on from the "last chance" of COP26, Boris Johnson now claims the current crisis demands a "climate change pass".[6] The Prime Minister says he wants to "remove barriers" to increased extraction of fossil fuels from the North Sea and has now gone begging Saudi Arabia to increase its oil supply.[7][8] The UK is also set to approve licenses for 40 new fossil fuel projects.[9]

The recent IPCC report tells us in no uncertain terms that the window is closing on adaptation, let alone mitigation.[10] The Environment Agency put it bluntly in its October 2021 report: Adapt or Die.[11] Breakdown is happening in a way that isn't allowing time for adaptation. According to the UN Secretary General, staying on fossil fuels will cause an atlas of human suffering and 'delay means death'.[12][13]

All of this is taking place despite recent polling showing that the UK public wants climate action now in face of the energy crisis.[14] As fossil fuel multinationals use the war in Ukraine to lobby for new extraction, they are also getting huge tax breaks, while its expected that 1 in 4 people in the UK will not be able to pay their bills by September.[15][16]

But more UK extraction won't help ordinary people with rising energy costs. The government's own advisors, The Climate Change Committee, said: "Any increases in UK extraction of oil and gas would have, at most, a marginal effect on the prices faced by UK consumers in future,"[17] More drilling in the North Sea will not provide the UK with a secure supply of affordable energy.[18] It would mostly be exported and exploration for new gas supplies would take around thirty years to come into effect. So, even if the government were to license a new gas field today, it would likely be 2050 – the year the UK has pledged to be net zero – before it produced anything we could use in our homes. Even the Energy Secretary has admitted this won't address the cost-of-living crisis.[19] It won't help with the war in Ukraine. It won't give us energy security.[20]

Former deputy director of the UK's National Crime Agency and director of plan B, Tim Crosland, said: “We are not facing a cost of living crisis, it's a cost of living scandal. The cost of living scandal and our dependence on petrostates for oil and gas are the consequence of our addiction to fossil fuels. The government is prioritising political pandering and vested interests over the public good in decision making while fossil fuel companies exploit this moment to expand their reach. Protestors are not the problem, policy failure is.

“For any chance of a livable future, the response to war in Ukraine can and must be integrated with the logic of urgent and radical action on the climate crisis. The Government has no democratic mandate to use the war as a pretext to destroy the conditions which make the planet habitable. It is people's duty to intervene to protect each other. They are exploiting public fear and disorientation at a time of crisis to advance corporate-friendly policies incapable of attracting democratic support.”

All the more, we are not preparing the workforce for the transition away from fossil fuels, leaving them vulnerable to shocks. Extinction Rebellion Youth are blocking the Fawley refinery to hold Exxon to account for their hand in the destruction to communities in the Global South, and to stand with workers who are planning to strike for better pay on 8th April.[21] The strike is planned due to Exxon offering a mere 2.5% pay rise to staff, despite Exxon's profits in 2021 topping an eye-watering £6.75 billion. The young people held banners calling for a just transition for workers as well as the cost of the living scandal to be paid for with the excessively high profits of oil and gas companies.

Swallow, 20, from Extinction Rebellion Youth, said: British workers and families should not bear the brunt of the energy crisis while oil and gas executives make insane profits. The public wants a transition that is rapid and fair, to support workers to retrain and start building a better future, but we're being lied to daily by politicians who tell us we can't afford to change, while supporting corporate interest over people's lives and livelihoods.

“It should come as no surprise that young people are choosing to step up and take action like this. Our futures are being sold and burned by the selfish few all while watching people's lives being decimated in the Global South already, and the betrayal we feel runs deep. If people had been doing what we're doing now 10 years ago maybe we wouldn't be in this situation, but we are. So, now there's nothing left for us to do but act because we refuse to be the last generation, we refuse to be bystanders.”

A worker at the Esso terminal in London said to an XR protestor this morning, “Good on you love, this has got to happen, fossil fuels have to end”.

Decarbonising is not unaffordable even according to the UK's own Office for Budget Responsibility (OBR)[22]. We should and could have been investing in renewables, heat pumps, home insulation, public transport, and the green economy for decades. As the OBR has said, these policies will create thousands of jobs and save billions of pounds for the UK public.[23] But the Government has been actively blocking them, enriching fossil fuel executives and oil state autocrats and subsidising climate breakdown instead. [24]

Rev Helen Burnett from Extinction Rebellion, said: “Compared to the horrific bloodshed in Ukraine, the fight for 1.5 ° C may seem abstract, but it is, in reality, all too real. It is the fight for all those on the frontline of the climate crisis, in particular our children and our young people and the majority of the world’s population in the Global South. It is the fight for a peaceful and organised international community, it is the fight for the story of humanity and the fight for all those whom we love.

“We, the general public of the UK, are strong and resilient in times of crisis and will be ready to pull together to support each other as we roll up our sleeves and chip in to do our bit to make the change we need. But people deserve to have a say in what comes next. As the government is unwilling to do the right thing, ordinary people should be given a say in how we transition away from fossil fuels. That’s why XR calls for a Citizen’s Assembly. Your next door neighbour or your local shop keeper participating in a Citizen’s Assembly would be far more trustworthy than this government.”

A few facts on the oil industry:

In an article published by Unearthed, it was revealed that, in 2021, the UK oil and gas industry reached a record high in carbon emissions, an increase of 15% compared to 2020. This is due in part because of pipeline outages to refineries. In fact, approximately 20% of oil is delivered to refineries from production sites via pipelines

In 2020, fossil fuel companies spent £7.1 million on 25,147 greenwashing facebook adverts, highlighting their investments in renewable energy and promoting natural gas as a sustainable energy source. Just over half of this spending came from one company: ExxonMobil.

The UK oil and gas industry is extremely carbon intensive due to the flaring carried out at refineries. Flaring is the burning of unwanted natural gas into the atmosphere, and is usually carried out to save money by getting rid of gas which is considered to be too unprofitable to transport [3]. This is done frequently, for example, at Fawley oil refinery.

Shell's profits for 2021 overall rose to $19.3bn compared with $4.85bn the year before, in part due to strong earnings from shipping liquified natural gas (LNG) on the international market amid a global squeeze on gas supplies.

A few facts on Hamble Terminal:

Hamble oil terminal is currently owned by BP. It was opened in 1924, and imports jet and ground fuels, and exports crude oil.

On March 28th, Energy Vice published an article stating that BP's climate targets to "set a net zero ambition covering operations, production and sales by 2050 or sooner" – so to reduce its absolute emissions – only account for 1/5 of the companies total greenhouse gas emissions. Importantly, its targets do not take into account its material sales. Global Climate Insights has estimated that oil and gas products will still account for 91% of BP's sales by 2050.

In an article by Unearthed, it was revealed that BP used money from a “low carbon transition” fund to buy shares in companies finding new ways to find and use fossil fuels. Furthermore, on the edge of the largest known cold-water reef in the world along the coast of West Africa, BP is developing a new gas field.

A few facts on Hythe Oil Terminal:

Hythe oil terminal is part of Fawley oil refinery, owned by oil and gas company ExxonMobil. ExxonMobil has known about the devastating effects of fossil fuel production on the environment for over 40 years, and concluded in 1979 that production “will cause dramatic environmental effects”, saying that “the potential problem is great and urgent”. However, instead of acting responsibly on this knowledge, ExxonMobil spent tens of millions of pounds funding climate denial and misinformation. A senior ExxonMobil lobbyist recently admitted that the company was aggressively fighting against climate science. One example of this is when ExxonMobil ran a behind the scenes US lobbying campaign against legislative efforts to restrict the toxic PFAS “forever chemicals”.

Additionally, Exxon is being legally challenged by communities in Guyana and Indonesia. In Indonesia, villagers of the Aceh Province have finally reached the courts in claiming justice for the tortures of dozens of Indonesian peasants at the hands of Exxon-hired armed guards: for 20 years, Exxon has slowed down justice for these families that saw family members maimed in the name of fossil fuel profit.

In Guyana, scientists and youth have filed a constitutional case on the grounds that Exxon's expansion of oil extraction in Guyanese territory violates the right to a healthy environment and the rights of future generations.

Fawley refinery is now the largest oil refinery in the United Kingdom, and one of the most complex refineries in Europe. With a capacity of 270,000 barrels (43,000 m³) per day, Fawley provides 20 percent of the UK's refinery capacity. [16]

A few facts on the West London Oil Terminal:

The West London oil terminal is owned by Esso, a subsidiary of the Exxon Mobil corporation. In 2021, Esso was granted a Development Consent Order by the Secretary of State to replace and expand 97km of underground aviation fuel pipeline to carry 40% more fuel across the South East of the UK; however Exxon can continue to use the old pipeline too enabling a potential 140% increase in capacity for at least the next 20 years.

ABOUT EXTINCTION REBELLION

Time has almost entirely run out to address the ecological crisis which is upon us, including the 6th mass species extinction, global pollution, and increasingly rapid climate change. If urgent and radical action isn't taken, we're heading towards 4 ° C warming, and the societal collapse and mass loss of life that that implies. The younger generation, racially marginalised communities and the Global South are on the front-line. No-one will escape the devastating impacts.

Extinction Rebellion believes it is a citizen's duty to rebel, using peaceful civil disobedience, when faced with criminal inactivity by their Government.

Extinction Rebellion's key demands are:

1. Government must tell the truth by declaring a climate and ecological emergency, working with other institutions to communicate the urgency for change.
2. Government must act now to halt biodiversity loss and reduce greenhouse gas emissions to net zero by 2025.
3. Government must create and be led by the decisions of a Citizens' Assembly on climate and ecological justice.

Breaking: Tunnel Network revealed as Just Stop Oil coalition continues overnight blockade of critical oil terminals

Press / April 2, 2022

"If governments are serious about the climate crisis, there can be no new investments in oil, gas and coal, from now – from this year."

Fatih Birol, Executive Director of the International Energy Agency [1]

Early this morning supporters of Just Stop Oil blocked access to the Titan Truck Park and revealed a secret underground network of tunnels at the Navigator and Grays oil terminals. They are demanding that the UK government stops new oil and gas projects in the UK.

The Grays and Navigator terminals have remained blocked overnight while this morning's news of tunnel activity at Grays and Navigator means that the main and emergency access roads to the critical oil terminals are closed, while Titan Truck Park contains over 100 oil tankers which service the three major oil terminals in the area. This is expected to cause significant disruption to oil supplies in London and the South East.

Just Stop Oil supporters currently occupying tunnels have taken inspiration from the tunnels that halted HS2's work at Euston Square Gardens one year ago – when activists spent 31 days living underground– and say that they are in for the long haul.

One of the occupants, Ben Taylor 27, an environmental volunteer, said:

“Why am I here? I’m pissed off that my government is investing in new fossil fuel projects. Oil is killing people now, it’s fuelling war and destroying everyone’s future.”

While the tunnellers are clear on their demand ‘that the government end new licences and consents for fossil fuels’, they are more reticent when it comes to providing details of their underground encampment, refusing to divulge how many people are living below ground, how extensive is their network or, whether they have taken the necessary measure to shore up their “downshaft”, “wormholes” or “chambers” as they call the various “rooms” they have constructed.

A group of 10 young people remained at the Navigator and Grays sites overnight “truck-surfing” on top of oil tankers. [3]

Eben, 21 from Brighton who was one of those who endured freezing overnight temperatures said

“I don’t want to be doing this. I don’t want to be disrupting people. I don’t want to be outside in the freezing cold. I don’t want to get arrested. I don’t want to spend a night in a jail cell. I’m 21. I should be pursuing my education, settling in a new city, going out with friends, getting my first real job, and dreaming big about my future.”

“But as it stands, I have no future.”

The action comes amid a series of cascading crises, the war in Ukraine, the cost of living crisis and news that climate breakdown is happening much faster than expected. However, while these events should prompt an emergency response to reduce UK dependence on oil and gas, the government is doubling down on drilling for new oil and gas. [4]

Molly Berry, 70, who was involved in the major actions at 10 sites yesterday said

“Every time I see a baby in their pram it breaks my heart, because I know what’s coming for them, unless our government takes action”

The cost of living crisis is not going to end, but we can insulate ourselves from higher fuel prices by getting off oil and gas. No new oil, reduce demand and invest in renewables.

The Just Stop Oil Coalition is calling on all of those whose futures are being destroyed, who are facing poverty and who are outraged at the prospect of continuing our dependence on fossil fuels to step up and take action, join our daily zoom calls at 7pm. It's 2022 and the time to stand by has passed.

Hundreds of activists have blocked 10 oil terminals, including one in Warwickshire, demanding that the UK government stops new oil and gas projects across in the United Kingdom. People are sitting at the entrances of the depots, including Kingsbury Oil Terminal in North Warwickshire.

The protests are being carried out by members of Just Stop Oil and Extinction Rebellion. About a dozen activists are at the Warwickshire depot and police are at the scene.

In a statement, Warwickshire Police said: "We are working to deal with the presence of activists in the area around Trinity Road, Kingsbury as quickly as we can."

A Just Stop Oil spokesman said: "The action comes amid a series of cascading crises, the war in Ukraine, the cost of living crisis and news that climate breakdown is happening much faster than expected. However, while these events should prompt an emergency response to reduce UK dependence on oil and gas, the government is doubling down on drilling for new oil and gas.

UK Petroleum Industry Association issue statement on protests

In a statement on behalf of the sector, the UK Petroleum Industry Association has issued a statement.

The statement reads: "Companies in the downstream sector acknowledge the need to reduce greenhouse gas emissions and are making changes now that can reduce our own production emissions, working with other sectors to reduce emissions in industrial clusters, and looking for ways to reduce the emissions of products too. All parts of society need to work together if we are to meet our Net Zero goals.

"Fuel supplies underpin the economy and it is important that any protest does not stop fuels users who need it, especially the emergency services and other critical workers.

Who are the activist groups involved?

The activists come from two protest groups, Just Stop Oil and Extinction Rebellion. Just Stop Oil is a group which is demanding the end of the UK's expansion of its oil and gas production over concerns about climate change and the cost of living crisis.

They came to prominence recently when activists zip-tied themselves to goalposts during Premier League football matches at the Tottenham Hotspur Stadium and Everton's Goodison Park.

In a statement, the group said: "The Just Stop Oil coalition is demanding an end to the government's genocidal policy of expanding UK oil and gas production and is calling on all those outraged at the prospect of climate collapse and suffering from the cost of living crisis to stand with us.

"Ordinary people can no longer afford oil and gas, it's time to Just Stop Oil. It's funding war and killing people in the global south, while destroying the future for young people everywhere."

Extinction Rebellion is a global climate change activist group which was formed in 2018 which aims to urge the government into action over climate change. Last year, members of the group blocked the Amazon depot in Coventry as part of a nationwide Black Friday protest across 13 UK hubs.

Kingsbury Oil Terminal is a large oil depot in North Warwickshire, close to the Staffordshire border. It is run as a joint operation between Essar Oil and Shell.

Essar Oil's website describes the site as follows: "It has 14 tanks operated on a co-mingled product basis with a storage capacity of 101m litres. The terminal is pipeline fed and there are eight vehicle loading gantries, which allows approx. 220 road loadings daily.

"Kingsbury Terminal stores gasoil, kerosene, diesel, jet, gasoline unleaded BOB, gasoline super unleaded and ethanol, as well as a number of additives and marker dyes. All dispatches are via road."

Just Stop Oil protests: Terminal operations suspended and arrests made

🕒 1 April 2022

UK climate change protests

PA MEDIA

| An activist is led away from the blockade of the Tyburn fuel depot in Birmingham

An oil company has temporarily stopped operations at four fuel terminals amid a series of co-ordinated protests.

ExxonMobil UK, one of the country's largest privately-owned underground oil pipeline distribution networks, said it had shut down four of its sites.

Campaign groups Just Stop Oil and Extinction Rebellion said they had blocked 10 "critical" sites including Birmingham, London and Southampton.

Essex Police said it had arrested 13 people at three sites.

Seven activists were also arrested at a site in Tyburn, Birmingham, and taken into custody, said West Midlands Police.

While at Buncefield Oil Depot in Hemel Hempstead, Hertfordshire Police said it had arrested 17 people and expected to arrest a further 10 once they had been safely removed.

Others have been led away by police officers from protest sites in Purfleet in Essex and Hamble near Southampton.

PA MEDIA

| West Midlands Police advised drivers to avoid the area near the Birmingham depot

Earlier, the Essex force said it remained at the sites of several protests in Thurrock where officers were trying to bring the protests to a "swift and safe conclusion".

Assistant Chief Constable Rachel Nolan said: "We are working to minimise the disruption at Navigator Fuel Distribution Centre, Askew Farm Lane [both in Grays], and at a depot in London Road, Purfleet."

The 13 had been arrested on suspicion of disruption, she said.

"This is an extremely dangerous situation for the protesters to be in. We are being clear on the risks, and are continuing to engage with them to try and bring this to a conclusion."

EXTINCTION REBELLION

Protesters were led away from BP's Hamble oil terminal near Southampton

Football matches have recently been disrupted by Just Stop Oil activists, who ran on to a pitch and tied themselves to goalposts in recent weeks.

Extinction Rebellion spokesman Andy Smith said the group had "held" three locations of strategic importance to the UK's energy network:

- Esso West, near Heathrow Airport
- Esso Hythe, Southampton
- BP Hamble, also near Southampton

Campaigners from the Just Stop Oil group said they were protesting at six other sites:

- Inter Terminals UK, Grays, Essex
- Navigator Terminals Thames, Grays, Essex
- Esso Birmingham
- Purfleet Fuels Terminal, Essex
- Kingsbury Oil Terminal, Warwickshire

- BP Depot, Tamworth

Operations had been halted at Hythe, Birmingham, Purfleet and West London terminals, said ExxonMobil.

At about 15:20 BST, the firm said it was "grateful" for the police's assistance as it had "now restored normal operations at the majority of our fuel supply terminals, and we anticipate that all terminals will be open later today".

The company said its terminal at Avonmouth, Bristol, was not affected by the demonstrations.

It apologised for any inconvenience.

The entrance to BP's Hamble terminal has been cleared by police.

| Protesters locked themselves to a tanker outside Esso's Purfleet terminal in Essex

The climate change protest groups claimed more than 30 people had climbed on top of tankers at Navigator Oil Terminal, Thurrock.

A specialist West Midlands Police team led away some of those taking part in the Birmingham protest shortly before 11:00 BST.

Among those taken away were two people who had climbed on to the roof of a tanker.

| Access was blocked to the London Road terminal in Purfleet

BBC Essex reporter Richard Smith, at the scene in Purfleet, said teams of police officers had removed several protesters who had been obstructing access to and from Esso's fuel terminal on London Road.

Demonstrators who had locked themselves to a gate had been led away, but five were locked to the roof of a fuel tanker, he said.

Four fuel tankers earlier waited on London Road as if to enter the site, but left after a short while, he added.

Also at the terminal, Steve, from south London, said: "I feel like I've got to do everything I can, it's a moral issue really at this point. I'd rather be doing other things but I've got two grandchildren and I'm really frightened about what kind of world they are going to actually grow up in."

Protesters were blocking the entrance to the Buncefield Oil Depot in Hemel Hempstead

At a demonstration at the Buncefield Oil Depot in Hemel Hempstead, campaigners blocked the entrance to the site on Green Lane.

Hertfordshire Police urged people to avoid the area while it dealt with the situation.

Breaking: Tunnel Network revealed as Just Stop Oil coalition continues overnight blockade of critical oil terminals

Press / April 2, 2022

"If governments are serious about the climate crisis, there can be no new investments in oil, gas and coal, from now – from this year."

Fatih Birol, Executive Director of the International Energy Agency [1]

Early this morning supporters of Just Stop Oil blocked access to the Titan Truck Park and revealed a secret underground network of tunnels at the Navigator and Grays oil terminals. They are demanding that the UK government stops new oil and gas projects in the UK.

terminals are closed, while Titan Truck Park contains over 100 oil tankers which service the three major oil terminals in the area. This is expected to cause significant disruption to oil supplies in London and the South East.

Just Stop Oil supporters currently occupying tunnels have taken inspiration from the tunnels that halted HS2's work at Euston Square Gardens one year ago – when activists spent 31 days living underground– and say that they are in for the long haul.

One of the occupants, Ben Taylor 27, an environmental volunteer, said:

“Why am I here? I’m pissed off that my government is investing in new fossil fuel projects. Oil is killing people now, it’s fuelling war and destroying everyone’s future.

While the tunnellers are clear on their demand ‘that the government end new licences and consents for fossil fuels’, they are more reticent when it comes to providing details of their underground encampment, refusing to divulge how many people are living below ground, how extensive is their network or, whether they have taken the necessary measure to shore up their “downshaft”, “wormholes” or “chambers” as they call the various “rooms” they have constructed.

A group of 10 young people remained at the Navigator and Grays sites overnight “truck-surfing” on top of oil tankers. [3]

Eben, 21 from Brighton who was one of those who endured freezing overnight temperatures said

“I don’t want to be doing this. I don’t want to be disrupting people. I don’t want to be outside in the freezing cold. I don’t want to get arrested. I don’t want to spend a night in a jail cell. I’m 21. I should be pursuing my education, settling in a new city, going out with friends, getting my first real job, and dreaming big about my future.

“But as it stands, I have no future.”

The action comes amid a series of cascading crises, the war in Ukraine, the cost of living crisis and news that climate breakdown is happening much faster than expected. However, while these events should prompt an emergency response to reduce UK dependence on oil and gas, the government is doubling down on drilling for new oil and gas. [4]

Molly Berry, 70, who was involved in the major actions at 10 sites yesterday said

“Every time I see a baby in their pram it breaks my heart, because I know what’s coming for them, unless our government takes action”

The cost of living crisis is not going to end, but we can insulate ourselves from higher fuel prices by getting off oil and gas. No new oil, reduce demand and invest in renewables.

take action, join our daily zoom calls at 7pm. It's 2022 and the time to stand by has passed.

Just Stop Oil blocks critical oil facilities for the third day in a row demanding an end to new oil and gas

Press / April 3, 2022

For the third day in a row, supporters of Just Stop Oil have disrupted oil supplies from 7 critical oil facilities near London and Birmingham in support of their demand to the UK government to end new oil and gas projects in the UK.

Early this morning people climbed on and blocked oil tankers at 5 critical oil terminals. A few have entered the loading bay at Buncefield oil terminal in Hertfordshire and are standing on oil tankers holding banners.

At Kingsbury, Midlands and Esso terminals in Birmingham oil tankers have been prevented from leaving by people sitting in the road. At Thames Oilport in Essex, 17 people have climbed or locked onto a tanker to prevent it from leaving.

The tunnellers who have disrupted the entrances to Navigator and Grays terminals in Thurrock, Essex since Friday remain in situ. Police have allowed trucks to pass overhead, which is a dangerously unsafe practice.

There have been over 200 arrests since Friday.

In the face of the worst cost of living crisis in a generation and looming catastrophe of climate breakdown, Just Stop Oil is calling on the UK government to get a grip and implement an emergency programme to reduce our reliance on oil and gas through insulation, renewables and free public transport.

Neil Rothnie, 69, a retired offshore oil and gas worker from Glasgow said:

"The oil and gas industry has one priority and it is not the climate crisis. It's not the future of North Sea oil and gas workers. And it's certainly not whether the poor can stay warm. Their plan is to produce every barrel of oil and gas under the North Sea, and if they have to trash the climate and the economy and destroy our lives – so be it. It's called "business as usual". The government needs to get a grip, get out of bed with the oil industry and Just Stop Oil."

Stephanie Pride 52, a counter assistant from Scarborough said:

"This situation is only going to get worse until we collectively reduce our energy consumption and make the switch to renewables. Unfortunately, that's very hard when those of us who don't drive are punished in the jobs market for not being able to afford or access decent public transport to where the jobs are."

Alex Heard, 25, a science teacher from Norwich said:

"I'm taking action because I'm terrified of the future my students, my friends, my family and particularly my younger brother will have to endure if we do not end our dependence on fossil fuels. If we do not act with urgency climate collapse becomes inevitable, and within the next 10-20 years we will face catastrophic change beyond our comprehension. Perhaps most alarming is that because most people are deliberately kept in the dark about the impending disaster we face, we carry on as usual, sleepwalking our way to disaster. "

The Just Stop Oil Coalition is calling on all of those whose futures are being destroyed, who are facing poverty and who are outraged at the prospect of continuing our dependence on fossil fuels to step up and take action, join our daily zoom calls at 7pm. It's 2022 and the time to stand by has passed.

[2] About Just Stop Oil

Just Stop Oil is a coalition of groups working together to demand that the government immediately halt all future licensing and consents for the exploration, development and production of fossil fuels in the UK.

We must urgently end our reliance on fossil fuels to avoid irreversible changes in the earth's climate system. We cannot continue to burn fossil fuels in the belief that future developments in carbon capture and storage and other so-called "unicorn technologies" will allow us to suck vast quantities of carbon dioxide from the atmosphere.

The UK must begin this process immediately. It starts by calling a halt to any further fossil fuel projects on the UK Continental Shelf. That would give us eight years of fossil fuel production left in which to rapidly transition to a zero carbon economy.

Everyone knows we have to engage in massive changes. Just Stop Oil is a coalition of groups demanding the no-brainer things be done immediately – actions that will reduce the demand for fossil fuel energy dramatically such as insulating our homes, rethinking how we travel, getting on with renewable energy and making sure no-one is left behind.

#ExtinctionRebellion #EndFossilFilth #RebelforLife

Just before 3pm this afternoon, Extinction Rebellion have returned to the Esso West oil terminal in West London as the 7th day of action at oil facilities around the UK takes place.

4 people have climbed on top of 2 oil trucks as they attempted to leave the terminal to deliver fuel to petrol stations in the South West. Everyone is locked on to the truck using concrete tubes and they have draped banners across the trucks that say 'NO MORE OIL' and 'END FOSSIL FUELS NOW'.

The group intends to stay for as long as possible. The action is taking place as the Just Stop Oil coalition also block oil refineries with 25 young people occupying Navigator Terminal, the largest in the UK, and 19 people are blocking West Thurrock Way.

The groups will continue to block oil refineries until the government agrees to end all new fossil fuel investments.

Alanna Byrne of Extinction Rebellion, said: "It should come as no surprise that people are taking action like this, that they feel they have to seek collective empowerment when faced with the contradiction of the IPCC report warning of global annihilation due to the continued use of fossil fuels, while the government continues to seek fossil fuel expansion and support corporate interest over people's lives and livelihoods."

"Many of those involved in these actions are young, they know what they face and what people around the world are facing already, and they're not going to be bystanders while they are continuously lied to by their own government about climate inaction. Scientists are telling us it's now or never, so if the government won't act like that's the reality then we will."

Just yesterday the latest IPCC report came out and the media barely noticed. The Secretary General of the United Nations, Antonio Guterres put it bluntly in his speech: "The jury has reached a verdict. And it is damning. This report is a litany of broken climate promises. It is a file of shame, cataloguing the empty pledges that put us firmly on track towards an unlivable world."

"This is not fiction or exaggeration. It is what science tells us will result from our current energy policies. Some government and business leaders are saying one thing – but doing another. Simply put, they are lying. And the results will be catastrophic."

Antonio Guterres concluded: "Climate activists are sometimes depicted as dangerous radicals. But the truly dangerous radicals are the countries that are increasing the production of fossil fuels. Investing in new fossil fuels infrastructure is moral and economic madness."

Leaders must lead, but all of us can do our part. We owe a debt to young people, civil society and indigenous communities for sounding the alarm and holding leaders accountable. We need to build on their work to create a grassroots movement that cannot be ignored. If you live in a big city, a rural area or a small island state, if you invest in the stock market, if you care about justice and our children's futures I am appealing directly to you. Demand an end to all fossil fuel subsidies."

The disruption at oil facilities in the UK is a preface to the Rebellion beginning in London on April 9th. Extinction Rebellion is calling on everyone watching the current protests to join them at Hyde Park on the day at 10am to finally bring an end to fossil fuels. We will return to the streets day after day until our immediate demand – for the UK government to immediately end all new fossil fuel investments – is met. ABOUT EXTINCTION REBELLION

Time has almost entirely run out to address the ecological crisis which is upon us, including the 6th mass species extinction, global pollution, and increasingly rapid climate change. If urgent and radical action isn't taken, we're heading towards 4 ° C warming, and the societal collapse and mass loss of life that that implies. The younger generation, racially marginalised communities and the Global South are on the front-line. No-one will escape the devastating impacts.

Extinction Rebellion believes it is a citizen's duty to rebel, using peaceful civil disobedience, when faced with criminal inactivity by their Government.

Extinction Rebellion's key demands are:

1. Government must tell the truth by declaring a climate and ecological emergency, working with other institutions to communicate the urgency for change.
2. Government must act now to halt biodiversity loss and reduce greenhouse gas emissions to net zero by 2025.
3. Government must create and be led by the decisions of a Citizens' Assembly on climate and ecological justice.

Mass Occupation of Kingsbury Oil Terminal halts production again

Press / April 7, 2022

For the seventh day in a row, supporters of Just Stop Oil have disrupted oil supplies from critical oil facilities in support of their demand that the UK government end new oil and gas projects in the UK.

At around 00.40am today, 37 people entered the Kingsbury oil terminal near Tamworth and climbed on top of tankers and the loading bay and locked on to the pipework. They have sent video messages to explain their actions. [1]

Elsewhere, at the nearby BP Oil Depot entrance, supporters of Just Stop Oil established a roadblock halting tanker routes to and from the terminal, while at the massive Navigator terminal in Essex operations are still suspended due to the ongoing occupation.

It is expected that this will continue to impact on fuel availability at petrol pumps across England

So far this morning there have been at least 10 arrests of Just Stop Oil supporters, and the total number arrested since April 1st is well over 400

Just Stop Oil have issued the following statement

The latest IPCC report issued on Monday made clear that staying below 1.5C is now a fairy tale, what is now at stake is humanity's survival, a liveable planet. Its message was clear: any further delay in implementing rapid and deep carbon cuts will result in the death of millions. Antonio Guterres, the UN Secretary General rammed home the message: "Climate activists are sometimes depicted as dangerous radicals." He tweeted. "But the truly dangerous radicals are the countries that are increasing the production of fossil fuels. Investing in new fossil fuels infrastructure is now moral and economic madness."

Fast forward not 3 days and the publication of the UK government's Energy Security strategy. What do they propose? Granting licences to new North Sea oil fields, another look at fracking and purchasing oil and gas from Saudi Arabia? These are the morally bankrupt plans of a criminal cartel protecting oil over life on earth.

Reducing energy demand through insulating housing is among the most cost-effective measures to cut our carbon emissions and enjoys huge public support, yet it barely figures. The government has fallen under the spell of shadowy lobbyists for the fossil fuel industry and is obsessed with huge infrastructure projects.

Boris needs to get a grip, he has referred to the oil funded war in Ukraine as genocide, what then do you call the planned deaths of millions due to the on-going support of the carbon economy?

The Just Stop Oil Coalition is calling on all of those whose futures are being destroyed, who are facing poverty, and who are outraged at yet another betrayal by this continuing dependence on oil and gas, to step up and take action. Join our daily zoom calls at 7pm. It's 2022 and the time to stand by has passed.
